MR. STODDARD TALKS OF THE PASSION PLAY AND MR. RAGAN LECTURES ON PARIS.

John L. Stoldard's lecture on the Passion Play of Oberammergau has always been one of the most popular of his reperiory. Mr. Stoddat | tells of the play as it was done in 1890, and already the time between that presentation and the next has half clapsed. That the interest in the last Passion play is so long continued shows how ready it will be to revive for the nexeries of performances, in 1900. The last lecture

THE DEMOCRATIC TREASURY DEFICIT.

THE REAL CONDITION NOW EVIDENT.

From The Worcester Telegram.

The first six days of April show the real condition of the Treasury, and disclose the fraud perpetrated upon the country by the Treasury Department's figures. The deficit for the first five days of this month was $4.681.39. At that rate it will amount to more than $5,000,000 for the months. LAST MONTH'S DECEPTION REVEALED.

From The Utica Herald.

From The Utica Herald.

The total of expenditures for six days of April was $11,503,705.74, a daily average of $1,917.29 in The receipts in the same period were $5,746,438.93; deficiency, $2,857,337.85. These figures are conclusive evidence of the numbing down process through the latter part of March to force an exhibit for the month favorable to the new Tariff Law, Payments of accounts due were thrown over to April for purposes of deception.

A PALL OVER THE SITUATION.

From The Philadelphia Press.

March receipts and disbursements almost balanced, the deficit being only $1,000,000. Assuming that revenue is maintained, the Trassry balance can tide over the deficit until December, but no one can be certain that it will be, and with this doubt no important enterprise will be attempted. This doubt hangs like a pail over the situation.

ALL THEIR CALCULATIONS FAIL.

From The Philadelphia Telegraph.

All the calculations of the Democratic revenue raisers come short most significantly. It is learned that there was quite a boom in sugar importations during the past month, the Government receiving about $2.550.600. At the same time this sum is relatively only about one-half what was estimated under the new tariff, which was between $40,000,000 and $15,000,000 a year.

Leaving the shippard, where he was a foreman, he established a shop for the manufacture of agricultural implements, which enterprise he carried on till 1865. In 1870 he invented a machine for making peach and berry baskets. The next year he added steam power to his plant, and it turned out, within a few months, 60,000 baskets and crates to contain the same. The business grew gradually until the factory is making annually over 2,000,000 fruit baskets and crates. In addition, a number of firms in other States are using his machinery and paving a royatty. It is said that he accumulated 8,00,000 from his business.

In 1810 he married Mass Sarah Ann Sirman, of Sussex County. He had three sons, two of whom were ansociated with him in his manufacturing. He was a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and took great interest in its work. Up to last year he had never held public office, although he was always prominently connected with the Delaware Republican organization, and contributed liberally to its campaign funds. He was nominated for Governor in August, notwithstanding the opposition of the followers of Mr. Addicks, and in November was elected triumphantly, in spite of the despetate efforts of the Democracy.
